```
#include<stdio.h>
#include<conio.h>
int S(void);
int A(void);
int B(void);
char input[100];
int i=0;
void main()
    char ch;
    do
    {
         //clrscr();
        printf("The Grammar is S->aAd/aB \n A->b/c \n B->ccd/ddc \n");
printf("enter the input string\n");
        scanf("%s",&input);
         i=0;
        if(S())
             if(input[i]=='\0')
                 printf("string accepted\n");
             else
                 printf("string rejected");
             getch();
             printf("do you wish to continue");
             scanf("%c",&ch);
         }
        else
             printf("rejected");
    }while(ch=='y'||ch=='Y');
    getch();
}
int S()
    int j=1;
    if(input[i]=='a')
        i++;
        if(A())
         {
             if(input[i]=='d')
             {
                 i++;
                      return 1;
             }
             else
             {
                 i=j;
                 if(B())
                      return 1;
```

```
else
                    return 0;
            }
        }
        else
            i=1;
            if(B())
                return 1;
            else
                return 0;
    }
    else
        return 0;
}
int A()
    if(input[i]=='b')
        i++;
        return 1;
    else if(input[i]=='c')
        i++;
        return 1;
    else
        return 0;
}
int B()
    if(input[i]=='c')
        i++;
        if(input[i]=='c')
            i++;
            if(input[i]=='d')
                i++;
                return 1;
            else
                return 0;
        else
            return 0;
    else if(input[i]=='d')
```

```
{
    i++;
    if(input[i]=='d')
    {
        i++;
        if(input[i]=='c')
        {
            i++;
            return 1;
        }
        else
            return 0;
    }
    else
        return 0;
}
```